

FACTS

What does Chesterfield Federal Credit Union (CFCU) do with your personal information?

Why?

All financial companies need to share members' personal information to run their everyday business. In the section below, we list the reasons financial companies can share their members' personal information; the reasons Chesterfield Federal Credit Union chooses to share; and whether you can limit this sharing.

What?

The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the product or service you have with us. This information can include:

Social Security Number, Credit Score, Account Balances, Account Transactions, Payment History, and Credit History

How?

Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

Who We Are

Who is providing this notice? Chesterfield Federal Credit Union (CFCU)

What We Do

How does CFCU protect my personal information? To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use security measures that comply with federal law. These measures include computer safeguards and secured files and buildings. Our employees are trained to maintain the highest level of confidentiality for your information.

How does CFCU collect my personal information? We collect your personal information, for example, when you open a new account, apply for a loan or credit card, initiate a wire transfer, show us your driver's license, or use your debit or credit card.

We also collect your personal information from others such as credit bureaus and other companies.

Why can't I limit all sharing? Federal law gives you the right to limit only

- sharing for affiliates' everyday business purposes—information about your creditworthiness
- affiliates from using your information to market to you
- sharing for non-affiliates to market to you

State laws and individual companies may give you additional rights to limit sharing.

What happens when I limit sharing for an account I hold jointly with someone else? Your choices will apply to everyone on the account.
