

FACTS

WHAT DOES CREDIT UNION OF TEXAS DO WITH YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION?

Why?

Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

What?

The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the product or service you have with us. This information can include:

- Social Security number and income
- Account balances and payment history
- Account transactions and checking account information

How?

All financial companies need to share members' personal information to run their everyday business. In the section below, we list the reasons financial companies can share their members' personal information; the reasons Credit Union of Texas chooses to share; and whether you can limit this sharing.

What we do

How does Credit Union of Texas protect my personal information?

To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use security measures that comply with federal law. These measures include computer safeguards and secured files and buildings. We also restrict access to nonpublic personal information about you to those employees who need to know the information to provide products and services to you.

How does Credit Union of Texas collect my personal information?

We collect your personal information, for example, when you

- open an account or apply for a loan
- use your debit card or pay your bills
- make deposits or withdrawals

We also collect your personal information from others, including credit bureaus or other companies.

Why can't I limit all sharing?

Federal law gives you the right to limit only

- sharing for affiliates' everyday business purposes — information about your creditworthiness from credit reports, credit applications and eligibility criteria
- affiliates from using your information to market to you
- sharing for nonaffiliates to market to you

If you have previously contacted us to limit the sharing of your personal information, there is no need to act again until at such time that you receive a renewal notice.
